

Reasons for Living Inventory

Name: _____ Age: _____

Practitioner: _____ Session date: _____

Instructions

The following inventory includes reasons people sometimes give for not ending their life. This inventory aims to understand how important each of these reasons is to you. Please read through each reason, and rate it on a scale of 1 to 6. Try to rate all reasons as honestly as you can. If you have any questions, let your mental health practitioner know.

Each reason can be rated on a scale from 1 to 6. Please use the following numbers:

- 1 = Not at all important (as a reason for not ending my life); 2 = Quite unimportant;
 3 = Somewhat unimportant; 4 = Somewhat important; 5 = Quite important;
 6 = Extremely important (as a reason for not ending my life)

Scoring and interpretation

For scoring, each response on the Likert scale corresponds to a specific point value:

- 1 = 1
- 2 = 2
- 3 = 3
- 4 = 4
- 5 = 5
- 6 = 6

Overall scores provide a snapshot of the client's reasons for living and psychological resilience.

- High total score (240–288): A high total score suggests that the client has a strong sense of reasons for living and numerous protective factors. They perceive their life as important and have several sources of motivation, hope, or support.
- Moderate total score (150–239): A moderate total score suggests that the client may have some reasons for living but might be struggling with a lack of connection to important aspects of life (e.g., future goals, relationships, personal meaning). There could be areas of vulnerability or room for growth in terms of finding more reasons to stay alive.
- Low total score (48–149): A low total score may suggest that the client may have limited reasons for living or may be experiencing significant distress, hopelessness, or isolation. This could indicate a higher risk of suicidal ideation or mental health issues. Low scores often require focused interventions to build up a sense of purpose, social support, or hope for the future.

Individual scores within each category highlight areas where the client may be struggling.

For example, if a client scores low in the 'responsibility to family' category, it suggests that they may feel disconnected or unsupported in their family relationships. This could indicate that extra support or intervention is needed to help them build or strengthen those connections, explore feelings of responsibility, or address family-related challenges.
